From the Executive Director

The year 2023 holds a special place in the history of independent India. On 26th November 2023, India marked the completion of 75 years since the adoption of its Constitution. At NFI, the Constitution of India has been our guiding book since inception. All our work is inspired by the values enshrined in the Constitution. Hence, it was natural for us to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Indian Constitution. In doing so, we launched a year-long campaign, Samvidhan Se Hum (We Are From the Constitution). Through this campaign, we are not only raising awareness but also enabling people to practice the values enshrined in the Constitution. We are using this opportunity to rekindle conversations around constitutional values and their application in everyday life. In doing so, we are focusing on youth, especially women and members of marginalised communities.

In the last few months, we have carried out several activities, including a video-making competition, the launch of a podcast series, and a two-weeklong art exhibition highlighting India's artisan sector and its pivotal role in nation-building and empowering women. NFI believes that women artisans play a vital role in preserving crafts, and their contribution is largely unheralded—much like the role of the founding mothers who helped draft the Indian Constitution in shaping the nation.

This year, we also launched the Abhijit Sen Rural Internship Program. [7] It aims to foster academic scholarship among undergraduate and postgraduate students on various facets of the rural economy and the challenges faced by farming and non-farming communities of rural India. Over the next three years, NFI will provide internships to 300 students to gain hands-on experience in rural communities. This program seeks to cultivate a generation of young researchers with a keen understanding of rural economies, societal challenges, and the transformative potential of grassroots work through research. In addition to financial support, the interns participated in a week-long induction program covering a wide range of topics on rural India, conducted by some of the most esteemed academics, policymakers, activists, and researchers in the field. In the last year, across two cohorts, we provided internships to 124 students from nearly every part of the country. The popularity of the program is evident, with more than 16,000 applications received in just one year.

Our Ankuran Program continued to work with 20 grassroots women leaders from Dalit, Adivasi, and other marginalised communities who head civil society organisations. The program helps them strengthen their focus on social inclusion, democratic engagement, and institutional sustainability. This initiative has enabled these organisations to expand their geographical reach and team size, mobilising resources to become more effective advocates for social justice. By focusing on diversity, gender balance, and capacity building, Ankuran has contributed significantly to creating stronger, more resilient organisations equipped to serve marginalised communities.

The Bandhutva [2] initiative supports emerging organisations working with Dalit, Muslim, and Adivasi communities. By fostering a deeper understanding of constitutional values and civic engagement, Bandhutva has helped these organisations build platforms for dialogue and participation, empowering community leaders to uphold civil rights and strengthen civic engagement. This year, the cohort of ten organisations supported by NFI worked primarily on issues affecting adolescent girls and young women.

One of our milestones this year has been the completion of our three-and-a-half-year project Leave No One Behind: Building Pathways for Peace in the North-East via Engagement of Civil Society and Youth Leaders. Implemented in nine districts across Assam, Manipur, and Nagaland, this project reached over 14,000 people. In the words of 20-year-old Tainiu, a young girl from Kohima who participated in one of the trainings: "I have learnt so many new things, things I didn't know existed. I am very grateful for this opportunity and the platform that I got."

Through our Climate Action [2] program, we continue to address the challenges faced by marginalised communities in Central India due to climate change. Our upcoming study on the impact of the coal transition on marginalised communities in Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh, and Odisha is nearing completion, and the findings will be released soon. Additionally, as part of raising awareness on extreme weather events linked to climate change, we are working on an MoU with the Indian Meteorological Department (IMD). Under this partnership, NFI is developing a video series in multiple languages on coping with heat waves, specifically for street vendors and urban workers. This initiative is part of a collaborative project with the Lakshmi Mittal and Family South Asia Institute at Harvard University. Furthermore, we have begun identifying and documenting sustainable indigenous knowledge systems in Chhattisgarh, Odisha, Madhya Pradesh, and Jharkhand. Promoting these practices through a dedicated network is the primary goal of this program.

As part of our core value of promoting gender justice, NFI once again joined forces with Azad Foundation and iPartner India for the second Kamla Bhasin Awards ^[2] for Driving Gender Equality across South Asia. This award celebrates individuals and organisations fighting patriarchy and working towards a gender-equal society, advancing Kamla Bhasin's vision of social change and justice for all genders.

As we continue to expand our reach, particularly in the Northeast and East and Central India, I am deeply grateful to the communities we serve, our dedicated team, our partners, and our supporters. Together, we remain committed to amplifying grassroots voices, empowering communities, and upholding the values that define us as a society.

Through our shared efforts, we look forward to creating a more just, inclusive, and vibrant India.

> Biraj Patnaik Executive Director

The National Foundation for India (NFI) is an organisation committed to enabling social justice through civic engagement, leadership development, and social inclusion. It was founded in 1992 by eminent leaders such as Bharat Ratna C. Subramaniam, Bharat Ratna Dr. M. S. Swaminathan, Dr. Kamla Chaudhary, Shri S. P. Godrej, Dr. Verghese Kurien, Begum Bilkees Latif, Dr. Devaki Jain, and Mr. Ratan Tata, among others.

NFI envisions creating a just and equitable society by enabling marginalised communities to improve the quality of their own lives, improving public understanding of social issues, and promoting social justice. Over more than 30 years, we have supported more than 200 grassroots organisations in 14 states. We are driven by the vision of a plural, equitable, and democratic society. NFI operates independently of corporate, religious, or governmental control and adopts a nationwide approach.

In short, we exist to enable all citizens, especially those from the most marginalised communities in the least accessible places, to access social justice. In doing so, we are guided by the following principles:

- └─● Live by and propagate the values enshrined in the Constitution of India.
- View all work through the lens of positive impact on communities, especially those from Dalit, Minority, Adivasi, and Tribal communities.

Ensure gender equity and inclusion at all levels.

Ankuran

Strengthening Women-led CSOs

Focused on strengthening grassroots civil society organisations (CSOs) led by women from marginalised communities, the program collaborates with 20 women leaders from Dalit, Adivasi, and religious minority communities working in three states of East and Central India: Chhattisgarh, Madhya Pradesh, and Odisha. The initiative builds capacity, supports leadership, facilitates dialogue, and mobilises resources to advance social justice and grassroots change. By concentrating on institutional growth, social inclusion, democratic engagement, and inculcating constitutional values, ANKURAN [2] strengthens the efforts of these leaders to create a lasting impact in marginalised communities.

Bandhutva

Supporting CSOs to Empower Adolescent Girls and Young Women Building on the learnings from Ankuran, our flagship programme with 20 women civil society leaders from marginalised communities, we continued the Bandhutva initiative this year to strengthen grassroots civil society organisations (CSOs). This initiative aims to support and enable 10 emerging CSOs actively working on issues affecting girls and women, particularly from Dalit, Muslim, and Adivasi (DMA) communities.

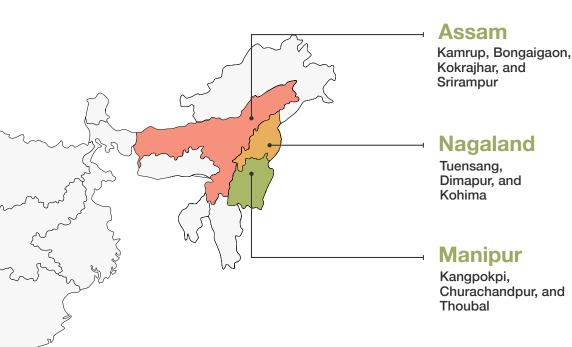

Bandhutva i focuses on building the capacities of these organisations in constitutional values and civic space. The underlying strategy is to strengthen CSOs with an emphasis on capacity building for self-sustainability, both in terms of human and financial resources.

Project Locations

We collaborated with key individuals and multiple stakeholders, including state governments and bureaucrats, businesses and entrepreneurs, academia, media, and a wide range of CSOs.

Leaving No One Behind

Leave No One Behind: 🖸 Building Pathways for Peace in the North-East via Engagement of Civil Society and Youth Leaders, a European Union co-funded project, was implemented over three and a half years in 9 districts across Assam, Manipur, and Nagaland.

The primary objective was to train youth leaders to work closely with communities, governments, and other stakeholders on Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), peacebuilding, and development in the region.

Noteworthy Achievements

- Youth leaders successfully brought conflicting communities together through cultural events, fostering mutual understanding and respect. These events were primarily organised in Eastern Nagaland and Kokrajhar in Assam.
- An SDG charter 2 and policy briefs were developed for Assam and Nagaland, respectively.
- The SDGs were translated into the Peite language and disseminated in the Churachandpur district of Manipur.
- The project significantly demystified SDG jargon for communities in the North-Eastern states, enhancing their accessibility and understanding.

Abhijit Sen Rural Internship

The Abhijit Sen Rural Internship Program ☑ is a transformative initiative aimed at bridging the gap between academic knowledge and grassroots realities by immersing students in the rural challenges of India. Launched in April 2023, the program fosters academic scholarship among undergraduate and postgraduate students on various facets of the rural economy and the challenges faced by farming and nonfarming communities in rural India.

Named in honour of the late Prof. Abhijit Sen, a distinguished economist and policy advisor who was instrumental in shaping India's rural development agenda, the program reflects his vision of an equitable and inclusive rural economy.

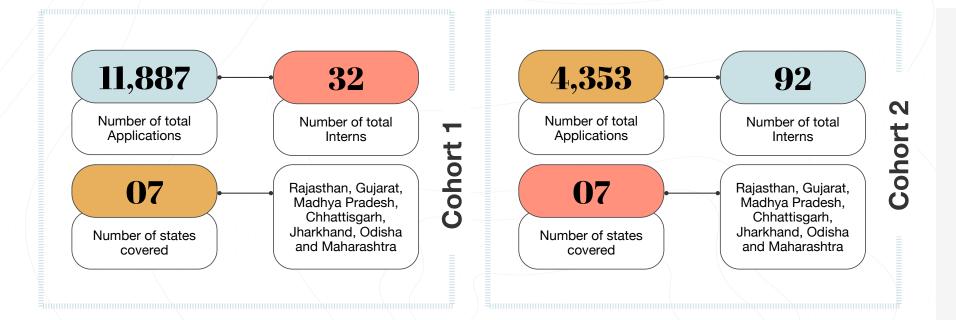

This 45-day internship provides students with the opportunity to conduct field research in rural areas on issues of interest. A stipend of ₹20,000 is paid to each intern upon submission of their research report, and during the field visit, NFI covers all travel, food, and accommodation expenses. Interns are selected through an extensive and rigorous process to ensure diversity.

Following selection, an induction workshop is organised to prepare interns by introducing them to various dimensions of the rural economy and research methodology. During the internship, interns are placed with rural grassroots organisations aligned with their areas of research interest. Additionally, they are provided with academic mentorship throughout the program. The research findings of the interns are shared with various stakeholders to enhance program implementation and rural development efforts.

By equipping 124 interns from diverse backgrounds with practical experience in just two cohorts, the program is cultivating a generation of future leaders committed to addressing rural challenges.

Media Fellowship

The media fellowship [♂] is one of the longestrunning programs of NFI. Started in 1994, over the last three decades, we have granted hundreds of fellowships to journalists from diverse geographies, genders, and social locations. They have published in-depth stories in multiple formats across different media organisations on a broad spectrum of subjects affecting public interest. Under the program, this financial year, we granted fellowships to 14 independent journalists to report in the Assamese language. Their stories will be published in Asam Bani, a leading weekly published from Guwahati.

Climate Action

Indigenising Climate Idioms in India

The focus on NFI's small interventions in the climate space was restricted to three areas of intervention. First, to conclude the work on the study of the impact of the transition out of coal on marginalised communities in Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh, and Odisha. The preliminary findings of the study were presented to trade unions working in the coal sector both at the national level and in these three states in collaboration with the International Labour Organisation.

NFI also consolidated the survey report based on a household survey of 1,200 households across the three states. The engagement now on this work is two-fold: to work on alternative livelihoods with states and the Government of India, whilst simultaneously engaging with community groups in the districts where the survey was conducted. The findings of the report will be released soon.

Second, as part of raising awareness on extreme weather events linked to climate change, we are working on an MoU with the Indian Meteorological Department (IMD), Ministry of Earth Sciences, Government of India, to support the IMD in raising awareness on coping with extreme weather events. As part of this, NFI is developing a video series in multiple languages on dealing with heat waves for street vendors and those operating in urban environments. This is part of a collaborative project with the Lakshmi Mittal and Family South Asia Institute at Harvard University.

Thirdly, we have begun the process of identifying sustainable indigenous knowledge systems in Chhattisgarh, Odisha, Madhya Pradesh, and Jharkhand. This is part of an attempt to create a network of grassroots NGOs and community groups, academia, and activists working on indigenous knowledge systems. Documenting indigenous practices and promoting them through this network is the primary goal of this program.

Samvidhan Se Hum

Celebrating 75 Years of the Indian Constitution

To celebrate 75 years of the Indian Constitution, on Republic Day (26 January 2024), NFI initiated a year-long campaign, Samvidhan Se Hum (2)—we are from the Constitution. The objectives of the campaign are not just to raise awareness but also to enable people to practice the values enshrined in the Indian Constitution. Through the campaign, we are rekindling conversations around constitutional values and their application in everyday life. In doing so, we are focusing on youth, especially women and members of marginalised communities.

We launched the campaign with two activities: Podcast Series and Video Making Competition.

Podcast: Samvidhan Ki Baat

To educate people about the Constitution of India, 2 on the occasion of Republic Day, we launched a fortnightly podcast series in Hindustani, a language spoken and understood by a large number of people in India. The series aims to discuss some of the most crucial aspects of the Indian Constitution, its journey, and its context in the simplest language and lingo for mass outreach.

Hamari Virasat / Exhibition Spotlighting Women Artisans of India

On the eve of International Women's Day (7th March 2024), NFI, in collaboration with Hand for Handmade Foundation and We, the People Abhiyan, inaugurated Hamari Virasat to highlight India's artisan sector and its pivotal role in nationbuilding and empowering women.

NFI believes that women artisans continue to play a vital role in preserving crafts, and their contribution is largely unheralded much like the role the founding mothers, who helped draft the Indian Constitution, played in the nation-building project. This exhibition is being organised as part of NFI's year-long campaign, Samvidhan Se Hum. The exhibition (2) was on display for more than two weeks. On the sidelines of the exhibition, several other activities were organised. One of the key highlights was "Print Your Preamble" by the Reclaim Constitution campaign.

Video Making Contest

Constitution In My Life

Aimed at voicing creative expressions on the relevance of the Constitution in the lives of Indians, 🔁 under the contest, NFI invited 58-second videos expressing what the Constitution means to them as citizens of the country. To promote linguistic diversity and inclusivity, the video could be in any one of the scheduled languages of the Constitution.

We received around 200 submissions, of which three entries will be awarded prizes based on their content, effort, and quality, while seven entries received special mention in different language categories. On Ambedkar Jayanti (14 April 2024), a cash prize of Rs. 25,000/- will be awarded to the first winner, Rs. 20,000/- to the second winner, and Rs. 15,000/- to the third winner.

Constitution In My Life मेरे जीवन में संविधान

Kamla Bhasin Awards

for Driving Gender Equality Across South Asia

The awards are instituted to honour the life and legacy of Kamla Bhasin, [2] feminist icon, poet, author, educationist, and pioneer of the women's rights movement in South Asia. She was associated with several organisations and movements across the globe and co-founded Sangat, a South Asian women's network, and Jagori, a women's rights NGO in India.

The awards recognise and honour women (cis/trans) practitioners of non-traditional livelihoods and men (cis/trans) enabling a gender-just ecosystem by working with other men and boys. The awards include a citation in the form of a trophy and a cheque of INR 100,000 each. They have been jointly instituted by Azad Foundation, iPartner India, and the National Foundation for India. The Special Jury Award consists of a citation in the form of a trophy. This year's awardees were selected by a six-member jury, chaired by philanthropist Anu Aga, after a careful and rigorous process. Other members of the jury included Khushi Kabir (Bangladesh), Binda Pandey (Nepal), Munizae Jahangir (Pakistan), Namita Bhandare (India), and Radhika Coomaraswamy (Sri Lanka).
